ernst moritz arndt university of greifswald language english abstract the question of discrimination has been an important issue ever since in history there have always been human beings that were considered to be inferior to others there are many reasons that caused people to consider other people to be less valuable and consequently made them think that these people can and have to be treated in a different mostly unfair way due to their not belonging to the dominant majority the most prominent forms of discrimination are due to racial sexual and social differences if a person does not fit into the predominating norms he or she is often regarded as being no equal member of the society to which he or she belongs such people often try to assimilate into the society that oppresses them and adjust to the dominant majority as much as possible but since there has been discrimination there have always been people who would not let anybody force them to be an outcast they do not want to deny who and what they are and they struggle to be accepted and respected like everybody else that is why whole movements like the civil rights movement or the women's movement evolved in the united states of america to improve the situation of discriminated people and put an end to their subordinate roles within their society black feminists or womanists are the ones that deal with the discrimination of black women in particular the struggles of african american women for equality can not only be seen in everyday life but in literary texts as well although the term womanism was not coined until the 1980s the concept of black feminism had of course appeared in many literary works before that time an example for that is lorraine hansberry's award winning play a raisin in the sun the drama about an african american working class family which comes to money is a portrait of a t a raisin in the sun is a play by lorraine hansberry that debuted on broadway in 1959 the title comes from the poem harlem also known as a dream deferred by langston hughes the story tells of a black family's experiences in the washington park subdivision of Chicago's Woodlawn neighborhood as they attempt to better themselves with an insurance payout following the death of the father. The New York Drama Critics Circle named it the best play of 1959. Walter and Ruth Younger, their son Travis along with Walter's mother Lena, Mama, and Walter's sister Beneatha live in poverty in a dilapidated one-bedroom apartment on Chicago's South Side. Walter is barely making a living as a limousine driver, though Ruth is content with their lot. Walter is not and desperately wishes to become wealthy. His plan is to invest in a liquor store in partnership with Willy and Bobo, street-smart acquaintances of Walter's. At the beginning of the play, Walter and Beneatha's father has recently died, and Mama is waiting for a life insurance check for 10,000. Walter has a sense of entitlement to the money, but Mama has religious objections to alcohol, and Beneatha has to remind him it is Mama's call how to spend it. Eventually, Mama puts some of the money down on a new house, choosing an all-white neighborhood over a black one for the practical reason that it happens to be much cheaper. Later, she relents and gives the rest of the money to Walter to invest, with the provision that he reserve 3,000 for Beneatha's education. Walter passes the money on to Willy's naive sidekick Bobo, who gives it to Willy, who absconds with it, depriving Walter and Beneatha of their dreams. Though not the younger of their new home, meanwhile, Karl Lindner, a white representative of the neighborhood they plan to move to, makes a generous offer to buy them out. He wishes to avoid neighborhood tensions over interracial population, which to the three women's horror, Walter prepares to accept as a solution to their financial setback. Lena says that while money was something they try to work for, they should never take it if it was a person's way of telling them they weren't fit to walk the same earth as them.

among our greatest dramatic works that also makes for great student reading.

A three-act play concerned with the tensions in a black middle-class family in Chicago.
